

“The unconscionable and cowardly attacks on America are affecting every aspect of our lives, from our heightened sense of awareness about travel to a renewed feeling of patriotism and national pride for our country.

Here in Mississippi, these attacks will obviously change how we do business. We will all be watching the economy closely during this time, and hopefully we will see America demonstrate its strength by keeping its economy as strong as possible.

We are looking at the call-up of National Guard and Reserve troops, which will affect employers around the state. The Delta could feel an impact from this.”
