

9/11. It's a date that's permanently ingrained in our national consciousness. On that fateful day, we were violently reminded that our world is not a safe one. Threats exist, and whether or not those threats become reality is, to a certain extent, within our control.

As Governor, I am committed to the safety and security of the people of Mississippi. State agencies are working together to ensure the protection of the innocent from those who would harm them. There is a role to be played in this work by the average citizen as well, a role that requires vigilance, caution and common sense.

This website has been established to assist you in that role, and I hope you will visit it often for updates and information.

May God bless Mississippi, and God bless America!
