Inmates in U.S. increase by 77%
The number of people behind bars in the United States grew by nearly 77 p= ercent in the 1990s, but the rise in the nation's prison population seems= to be leveling off, a Justice Department study released Sunday said. The= study of inmates in local, state, federal and private prisons said more = than 2 million people were incarcerated at the end of 2000. In 2000, ther= e were 478 prisoners serving sentences of a year or more per 100,000 U.S.= residents. At the end of 1990, the number was 292 prisoners per 100,000 = residents. Mississippi and four other mostly rural states had increases o= f more than 10 percent in their incarceration rates in 2000: Idaho, North= Dakota, Vermont, and Iowa.

California: Governor OKs online wagering
In a stark reversal from a message he sent last year, Gov. Gray Davis sig= ned legislation Monday allowing Californians to bet on horse races over t= he Internet and telephone. The bill, AB 471, marks a victory for racetrac= ks facing declining revenues, as well as for labor groups seeking to unio= nize backstretch workers and ensure regulation of their housing and workp= lace conditions. Gambling critics, however, assailed the Democratic gover= nor for his about-face from last year, when he vetoed a similar measure t= hat he said would have expanded wagering too far. In a two-page message r= eleased Monday, Davis said he reversed his position primarily because of = a December 2000 federal law change explicitly permitting Internet gamblin= g.

North Carolina: House panel approves HMO reform

The House Health Committee on Tuesday unanimously endorsed a managed-carereform bill — the so-called patients' bill of rights — and voted to ha= ve its provisions cover some elements of the state employee healthh plan.=
The bill would require HMOs to give patients more freedom in choosing th= eir primary-care doctors and would allow patients to sue the companies in= state court. The bill also sets out a process for having outside panels = resolve some conflicts between patients and the companies. "What you have= before you today is the most comprehensive, strong and far-reaching pati= ent protection this body has ever had before it, and probably the stronge= st consumer-rights bill in the country," said Rep. Phil Baddour, the Demo= cratic majority leader from Goldsboro who sponsored the House version of = the bill.

s signed legislation Monday allowing Californians to bet on horse races ov= er the Internet and telephone=2E The bill, AB 471, marks a victory for rac= etracks facing declining revenues, as well as for labor groups seeking to = unionize backstretch workers and ensure regulation of their housing and wo= rkplace conditions=2E Gambling critics, however, assailed the Democratic g= overnor for his about-face from last year, when he vetoed a similar measur= e that he said would have expanded wagering too far=2E In a two-page messa= ge released Monday, Davis said he reversed his position primarily because = of a December 2000 federal law change explicitly permitting Internet gambl=
