

Barbara Powell, AP

How does the governor feel about flying as much as he does? What's the most he's flown in one day?

Aggressive plan for education and jobs in MS

He tries to honor as many of them as he can, and accomplishing that requires a good bit of travel.

Many of the flights were listed as "education site visits." What were these trips about?

In his State of the State address on January 9, Governor Musgrove challenged the Legislature to fully invest in education for K-12, and to make that investment before the end of the month. He visited schools around the state to discuss his challenge with teachers, students and parents, and to enlist their support.